COUNTRY LIFE PRESS TRAIN STATION

A meeting was held Monday evening with residents who live in the vicinity of the Country Life Press train station following the MTA/LIRR's announced plans to abate and demolish the existing Country Life Press Train Station building. In its place will be a new plaza and potentially a shelter that will include plantings that the LIRR would install, and that the Village would maintain. The scope of work also includes but is not limited to items such as evaluating and addressing ADA code compliance, repairing other structural features such as platform joints, ramps, railings, lighting, benches and bike racks. It is important to note that the MTA/LIRR is covering 100 percent of the cost of demolition and any replacement structure/plaza and associated plantings. The MTA/LIRR is planning to move ahead with this project shortly but has given the Village until mid-December to consider entering into this agreement. At the same time, some residents have proposed the Village forgo this offer and take on the full cost of abatement and maintenance of the structure.
