

Chapter 13: Irretrievable and Irreversible Commitment of Resources

There are no resources that would be permanently committed to the Proposed Action, other than the Main Building. The Proposed Action would not utilize any natural habitats, water resources, or utilities, and would add open space.

On a temporary basis, certain resources related to the building demolition and site restoration would be committed. These would include mechanical equipment resources and the human resources needed to accomplish the work. The operation of construction equipment would require electricity, fossil fuels, and possibly water.
